FOYER

Passing through the 10' high walnut and glass doors, one cannot miss the unusual Ashlar patterned Egyptian stone walls from the outside continuing into the foyer seamlessly. The asymmetrical console in walnut with an acrylic leg anchors the client's abstract painting. Architectural "Tantrum" LED light fixture by Corbett lighting supplied by Capitol Lighting makes a bold statement. Capitol Lighting features more than five hundred thousand lighting fixtures and accessories available in their stores or online. DINING ROOM

The open carved wood room divider was designed by Susan and fabricated by 1050 Commercial Architectural Woodworking. The divider complements the walnut crisscross wave dining room chandelier by Libe supplied by Capitol Lighting. The Swarovski Crystal Sconces are affixed to custom backbets plates made of Kinon with polished stainless steel accents. "Capitol lighting provides every type of lighting for their designers," says Susan.

BEST FEATURE

"The quality and craftsmanship of our custom home delivered in a timely manner."

DESIGN PROCESS

Jay Colestock and Susan Lachance spent time defining the clients' needs and tastes along with designing the best possible layout for capturing the views before presenting the final package. "Our goal was to come up with a warm contemporary home that felt both comfortable and inviting." The client's love of art and vast collection played an important role in the design of the home when it came to details such as the walls and lighting specified. Clerestory window design, wood clad privacy walls, metal roofing and the exterior Ashler patterned Egyptian stone walls were some of the architectural features that Jay and Susan used. Because this home is highly visible from the 6th fairway, the back of the home was equally important. It was crucial to engage a builder and a landscape architect that could execute Jay and Susan's visions in making these plans a living dream home. Terry Cudmore of Cudmore Builders and Krent Weiland of KWD landscape design became members of the dynamic dream team. Astoundingly the team was able to execute the design and complete this architecturally beautiful home in fourteen short months.
